April 2011

Dr. Sacco was the sole author of a paper titled "Contact Lens Associated Infiltrative Keratitis (CLAIK) and Multipurpose Solutions" in the April 2011 issue of Contact Lens Spectrum.

This paper reviewed cases from our practice in which specific multipurpose contact lens solutions can interact poorly with certain lens materials and result in corneal complications. The term for this new condition is CLAIK and Dr. Sacco was part of a consulting team of doctors from across the nation to identify this new entity. The paper can be viewed in its web format here <<http://www.clspectrum.com/article.aspx?article=105455>>.
